Charitable Foundation of the Energy Bar Association Sponsors Three Summer 2008 Interns at DOE and FERC

The Charitable Foundation of the Energy Bar Association is pleased to announce that it will sponsor three legal interns who will work at federal energy agencies this summer.

The summer interns are:

- * Christina England, a law student at Vanderbilt Law School, interning in the Chicago office of the United States Department of Energy's Office of General Counsel;
- * David Frenkil, a law student at American University's Washington College of Law, interning in the DC office of the United States Department of Energy's Office of General Counsel;
- * Scott Johnson, a law student at American University's Washington College of Law, interning in the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's Office of General Counsel.

The funding of these three internships follows the Foundation's tradition, through its Scholarship Committee, of providing financial support to law students working in energy-related summer internships at government agencies such as DOE, FERC, EPA and DOI.

The CFEBA is non-profit organization formed in 2002 under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Its mission is to engage in energy-related and general charitable activities through the financial contributions and volunteer services provided by members of the Energy Bar Association and others. The CFEBA is the charitable arm of the Energy Bar Association, which is headquartered in Washington, D.C. and has more than 2,700 energy lawyer and energy professional members.
